

The New York Times

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 2004

Circ: 1,677,003

Ruby Washington/The New York Times

Springtime for Brooklyn

Mel Brooks, flanked by Mayor Bloomberg and Governor Pataki, said yesterday that he would film "The Producers" at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, with Nathan Lane and Matthew Broderick reprising their stage roles. He said he was happy that tax breaks would allow him to make the movie here instead of in Canada, especially because of "the bagels, just the bagels alone. You go to Toronto, they're mushy."